Road to Hell Pop Sticker

Once upon a time, there was a road to hell. Let the work we dream about be the one we live in now. I was alone long, I didn't even know I was lonely, out in the cold so long, I didn't even know that I was cold. King of mortar king of bricks, the river Styx was a river of stones. Everybody's hungry, everybody's tired, everybody slaves by the sweat of his brow. In the darkest time of year, why is it so bright down here, brighter than a carnival, it ain't right and it ain't natural. Hey little songbird, sing me a song, I'm a busy man, and I can't stay long. Orpheus, my heart is yours, always was and will be, it's my gut I can't ignore. Life ain't easy, life ain't fair, girl's gotta fight for her rightful share. Ain't no compass bro, ain't no map, ain't no just a telephone wire and a railroad track. What do we have that they should want, we have a wall to work upon, we have work and they have none, and our work is never done my children children. Wipe away your tears brother, oh brother I know how you feel, I can see you're blinded by the sadness of it all. Mr. Hades set you free, to work into the ground for all eternity. Dreams are sweet until they're not, men are kind until they aren't, flowers bloom until they rot and fall apart. If it's true what they say, if my love is gone for good, you can take this heart away, you can take this flesh and blood. Young man, you can sing your ditty, I conduct the electric city. Where is the treasure inside your chest, where is your pleasure, where is your youth? With his kiss, the riot begins. You said the world was generous and wouldn't turn its back on us. Doubt comes in and turns the wine, doubt comes in and leaves a trace of vinegary and turpentine. He could make you see how the world could be, in spite of the way it is.
